A. Introduction

MySpace is committed to working with parents and families to provide a safer and more secure environment for all users of the MySpace website. Pursuant to this goal, we have designed this Parent and Family Guide especially for you, as parents, to use when talking with your teens about how to be safe online and on MySpace. The Guide provides you with information on how to address MySpace-related issues that may arise as a result of teens using MySpace, and how to contact MySpace with questions or concerns that relate to your teens' use of the site. We also take this opportunity to show you the numerous ways in which families can use MySpace, ways you and your family can begin to talk about the Internet, and the positive activities our members have been engaging on our site.

This Guide and its contents are intended only for the use of parents and families. Please be assured that in addition to this Guide for parents and families, MySpace is working to address the concerns of other groups or individuals, including teachers and students, in distinct ways, some of which are also described in this Guide.

MySpace reserves the right to make any changes to the policies and procedures described in this Guide as may be necessary from time to time.

B. About MySpace

MySpace, a Fox Interactive Media company, is the premier lifestyle portal for connecting with friends, discovering popular culture, and making a positive impact on the world. By integrating web profiles, blogs, instant messaging, email, music streaming, music videos, photo galleries, classified listings, events, groups, college communities, and member forums, MySpace has created a connected community. Although most of these features can be found on other large portals, it is the tight and seamless integration of these tools that has led to MySpace's dramatic growth. MySpace is the most widely-used and highly regarded site of its kind and is committed to providing the highest quality member experience. MySpace will continue to innovate with new features that allow its members to express their creativity and share their experiences. MySpace's international network includes localized community sites in the United States, the United Kingdom, Japan, France, Germany, Australia, Ireland, Spain, Italy, Mexico, Canada, New Zealand, Latin America, Austria, Switzerland, Netherlands and Sweden.

MySpace allows users to set up their own profile pages, which can include lists of their favorite musicians, books and movies, photos of themselves and others, and links to pages within and outside the MySpace environment. Creating a profile is one of the first things a new user does when getting started on MySpace. Personalizing profiles and choosing the background, music and name gives users the opportunity to create their own space on the Internet. There are many third party features, such as the polls, which are commonly seen on many of the younger users' profiles, "deeplinked" images (images that originate on other websites), and other content that can be used in conjunction with a MySpace profile but that is not administered or hosted by MySpace.

MySpace does not charge its users to set up their profiles or establish an account. It does not require or accept credit card or other payments, and is unable to independently verify users' identities. It is therefore possible for a user to establish a false identity or name on MySpace, and the true identity of an account creator may not be known by MySpace. Nonetheless, MySpace is committed to assisting with investigations that involve misuse of the website or violations of its policies to the fullest extent, consistent with applicable laws and its privacy policies.

Members are expected to post information and content in compliance with MySpace Terms of Use. MySpace posts a Privacy Policy and Terms of Use Agreement which are accessible from every page on its site. Taken together, these policies establish rules concerning the type of material and activities we permit on our website. For example, these policies prohibit hate speech, nudity, pornography, and violence. MySpace also has a team of employees assigned to enforce these policies and handle user inquiries.

C. An Overview of MySpace & How to Create a MySpace Account

This is the MySpace.com Main Page, where new users can sign-up to join MySpace, and current users can login to their MySpace pages.

Creating a MySpace Account is fast and easy.

1. Get connected to the Internet.
2. Type www.myspace.com into the address bar of your web browser. The web browser will look like this:

3. The login / sign-up page will look like this:

4. In the “Member Login” box (below) click the light blue “Sign Up!” tab:

The image shows a dark blue login and sign-up form. At the top, there are two tabs: 'Log In' (dark blue) and 'Sign Up!' (light blue). Below the tabs are two input fields: 'Email:' and 'Password:'. To the left of the 'Remember Me' checkbox is a small square icon. A yellow 'Log In' button is positioned to the right of the 'Remember Me' checkbox. At the bottom right of the form, there is a link that says 'Forgot your password?'.

5. That will bring you to this screen:

Once you click the “Sign Up” button, you will be told that you can add pictures to your account. Please read the safety tips. MySpace is a public place and you should be careful about what you post online. The screen to add your photo looks like this:

Welcome Parent!

Your MySpace account has been created.
Here are some quick steps to get you started on MySpace.

1. Upload Photo

2. Add Friends

Upload your photo to let friends or other members see who you are.
Note: You can update this photo anytime.

1. Click "Browse" to find a photo on your computer.

To add pictures or photos click the "Browse" button and locate the pictures saved on your computer. Select photos you want to add and click the "Upload" button.

You can choose to skip this step, and add photos or pictures later, by clicking on "Skip this step" at the bottom of the screen.

9. Now you can choose to email your friends, who do not have MySpace accounts, at their personal email addresses, tell them you joined MySpace and invite them to sign up too.

1. Upload Photo
2. Invite Friends

Now start adding friends to your space by inviting them to join. When your friends join you'll automatically be connected to their friends - it's a great way to meet interesting new and interesting people!

10. You will now see your MySpace homepage. There are a number of prompts in red on the page. For example, you must verify your email address and you may select your MySpace URL. URL stands for Uniform Resource Locator. Your MySpace URL appears in the address bar of your web browser and will look similar to www.myspace.com/tom. The part of the URL you will be selecting follows the '/', so www.myspace.com/YOUR URL.

The screenshot shows the MySpace homepage for a user named 'Parent'. The page has a blue header with the MySpace logo and navigation links. A red-bordered box highlights a prompt: 'Verify your email address! Click Here'. Below this, a message states: 'You can't send messages, post comments, post bulletins or add friends until you verify your email'. The profile section shows 'NO PHOTO', 'Profile Views: 0', and 'Last Login: 07/10/08'. There are sections for 'Status and Mood', 'Friend Updates', and 'Bulletin Space'. A red-bordered box also highlights a prompt: 'Pick your MySpace URL! Click Here'.

When you click the link in the red box to verify your email address the following screen will appear:

Verify your email address.

Why verify? Email verification helps MySpace.com provide a fun and safe experience for everyone. Until you verify your email address, some of your actions on MySpace.com will be limited.

Check your welcome email for the verification link. If you didn't receive this message or accidentally deleted it, request another verification email below.

If you have problems receiving email from MySpace.com at your current email address or accidentally provided the wrong email address, change your address below. A verification email will be sent to your new address automatically.

Your current email address is: pgmyspacedemo@gmail.com

Request Verification Email

You will receive an email at your current email address that will contain the verification link.

Contact Customer Service

If you are having trouble receiving emails at your current email address, please contact Customer Service.

Return to Home.

Please be sure to check your email inbox for the verification email from MySpace and verify your email address via the link provided. If you do not verify your email address, your actions on MySpace will be limited. A valid email address helps us protect you better when using MySpace and provides another important tool to law enforcement.

The next step is to pick your URL. When you click in the red box to choose your URL, the following screen will appear:

Your Display Name is: Parent

You can change your Display Name as often as you want, just like you always have.

But now we have a new MYSACE NAME/URL feature. Each user can pick a unique MySpace Name. It will become your own custom URL. THIS DOES NOT AFFECT YOUR DISPLAY NAME. You'll still be able to change the name that appears on your MySpace profile whenever you want. But you won't be able to change your MYSACE NAME/URL once you pick it, so be careful!

NOTE: You cannot change your MySpace Name once you pick it, so make sure you pick something you're willing to live with!

After you enter your MySpace Name, we'll tell you about the Real Name feature.

Pick your MySpace Name/URL:

http://www.myspace.com/

Confirm your MySpace Name/URL:

http://www.myspace.com/

Submit

Read the instructions and choose your URL carefully, as you can never change it. Please do not use any copyrighted materials, like "Harry Potter", or the names of famous people or bands, like "Bill Clinton" or the "Beatles", in your URL as this is a violation of our Terms of Use and could lead to account deletion. Other than that, your URL can be anything and will look similar to:

Now you are ready to make changes to your profile by accessing different parts of this next box, which is located on the top left of your profile screen and looks similar to this:

On the top level navigation menu you can place your mouse cursor over the Mail menu to see your Mail options. From here you can compose a new message, check your Friend Requests, view your Sent and Saved mail, and edit your Address Book. Friend Requests are the way MySpace users ask other MySpace users to be their MySpace friends.

The Mail menu looks like:

From your homepage you can also view your friend’s bulletins. Bulletins are a quick way to post a message that all of your friends can read. Your bulletin area looks like this:

Another fun way friends can keep in touch is to update their MySpace Status. In your Status and Mood area you can both update your status and mood as well as view your friends’ updates:

Your homepage also offers you the option to view your Friend Updates. If you subscribe to your friends’ updates, and their privacy settings allow it, you can be notified when they update their profile:

Congratulations, now you are ready to get started and use MySpace. Please note that your teen may have special settings on his or her account that you do not automatically have on yours. For example, users under 18 are automatically assigned a Private Profile, which means, among other things, that only individuals who know their last name or email address can contact them or view their profile.

You can use MySpace in the following ways:

Browse

The Browse feature allows MySpace users to browse for other users with specific interests. No user can browse for other users who are under 16.

Browse Users

The screenshot shows the 'Set Browse Criteria' form in MySpace. It has a blue header with 'Basic' and 'Advanced' tabs. The form is divided into several sections: 'Browse For' (Women, Men, Both), 'between ages' (18 and 18), 'who are' (Single, Married, In a Relationship, Divorced, Swinger, Engaged), 'and are here for' (Dating, Networking, Relationships, Friends), 'located within' (Country: United States, Postal Code: Any), and 'photos' (Show only users who have photos, Show name and photo only). At the bottom, there is a 'Sort Results By' section with radio buttons for 'Recently Updated', 'Last Login', 'New to MySpace', and 'Distance', and an 'Update' button.

Search

The Search feature allows MySpace users to find someone they know by entering their first and last name, display name, email address, etc. You can look for your teens, cousins, siblings, colleagues and old friends by entering in their information in this section.

Invite

The Invite feature allows users to add their friends from the physical world to join MySpace and become their “Friends” on MySpace .

D. How to Contact MySpace.com

MySpace is committed to addressing any problems that parents may have regarding the site as soon as possible once these concerns are brought to our attention.

MySpace has created an e-mail address for the exclusive use of parents, which is parentcare@myspace.com.

This email address should be used only by parents who are trying to contact MySpace about an issue related to their child's use of MySpace. Messages received from individuals other than a parent, or that relate to other matters, will be re-routed to another function in Customer Care. For other contacts at MySpace, go to www.myspace.com and click on the "Contact MySpace" link at the bottom of the page, or go directly to <http://www.myspace.com/index.cfm?fuseaction=misc.contact>.

E. How Your Teens are Using MySpace

Your teens are using MySpace to connect with friends and find others that share similar interests. They are using MySpace to express themselves, their thoughts, ideas, creativity, and opinions on politics, art, music and life. They do this through blogs, choosing the colors and design of their MySpace page, the music, movies and books that are listed as their favorites, the original or favorite art or photography they display on their page, and the way they describe themselves in the “About Me” section of their profile. They may be discovering and showcasing all their various talents, such as filmmaking, comedy or music, by sharing their accomplishments on areas of the site, and they are learning about new musicians and artists in the same way. They may be joining support groups for divorce or eating disorders or depression, and helping each other through the difficult and tumultuous times teens often encounter. And your teens are being exposed to different cultures and countries as MySpace continues launching throughout the world.

MySpace works with numerous non-profits and non-governmental organizations to further the cause of Internet safety. Some of these are The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, ConnectSafely (www.connectsafely.org), Enough is Enough (www.enough.org), National Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy (www.myspace.com/nationalcampaign), RAINN (www.myspace.com/rainn_dc), Partnership for a Drug-Free America (www.myspace.com/areyouincontrol), iKeepSafe (www.ikeepSAFE.org), National Suicide Prevention Network (www.myspace.com/suicidepreventionlifeline), National Eating Disorders Association (www.myspace.com/myneda).

F. How to Discuss Your Teen’s MySpace Profile

Now that you know a little more about how your teens are using MySpace, you can begin a discussion with them about their profiles and their use of the site. Remember, MySpace is only for teens 13 and older. Ask them what kind of information they have posted online. Ask them to show you what their MySpace page looks like and how they created it. Have them tell you about their top friends. Ask them to take you through what they typically do on MySpace, whether it is search for new music or message with friends from camp. These are the same questions you ask when they come home from school – just applied to a different space.

While you’re talking with them about their MySpace profile, you can remind them that the same rules apply in the online world as do in the offline world. For example, you tell them not to talk to strangers when they leave the house. That holds true online. You tell them not to open the door of the house to anyone they don’t know. That also holds true online. The rules which you have taught them to apply in the physical world to keep them safe translate easily to the online space, and your teens need your guidance, your rules and your discipline while they navigate both the physical and online worlds.

Here are some simple rules for Internet Safety to share with your teen:

1. Don't forget that MySpace profiles and forums are public spaces. Don't post anything you wouldn't want the world to know (such as your last name, phone number, home address, IM screens name, or specific whereabouts). Avoid posting anything that would make it easy for a stranger to find you, such as where you hang out every day after school or your school name and mascot.
2. People aren't always who they say they are. Be careful about adding strangers to your friends list. It's fun to connect with new MySpace friends from all over the world, but avoid meeting people in person whom you do not fully know. Be careful of adding your friends' friends to your own list. If you must meet someone, do it in a public place and bring a friend or trusted adult.
3. Harassment, hate speech and inappropriate content should be reported. If you feel someone's behavior is inappropriate, react. Talk with a trusted adult, or report it to MySpace or the authorities.

4. Don't post anything that would embarrass you later. Think twice before posting a photo or information about you that you wouldn't want a potential college recruiter, boss or teacher to see!
5. Don't lie about your age. MySpace diligently protects its users of varying ages. When you lie about your age you circumvent these safety measures and MySpace must take action on your profile upon discovering the misrepresentation. Additionally, do not try and access content or areas that are inappropriate for your age group.

Please remember that your role is critical when it comes to communicating and enforcing these rules. Your teens should not be on MySpace if they are under the age of 13, however you can always begin a dialogue regarding Internet safety regardless of age.

G. Using MySpace as a Family

The numerous features of MySpace, which allow old friends to re-connect and share stories and pictures about their lives, makes it perfect for families to use for the same purposes. You and your immediate and extended family can easily share pictures of each other and stories of family events on MySpace, as well as plan calendars for the next reunion. MySpace Bulletins are excellent for reminding each other about upcoming birthdays or events.

H. Protecting Your Teens Online

Underage Users

The MySpace policy allows individuals who are 13 years of age and older to register for the site. While younger individuals attempt to register under false dates of birth, MySpace endeavors to identify and remove such underage users. MySpace deletes thousands of profiles per week for age misrepresentation.

Parents can help MySpace enforce its age restrictions. If you have children who are under the age of 13 and have MySpace accounts, please email the web addresses/ URL of their profiles to parentcare@myspace.com so that we may remove them from MySpace.com. Please be sure to include the following in the email:

1. The web address of the child's profile (see Section J below on how to obtain the web address);
2. Your relationship to the child;
3. The actual age of the child; and
4. Your contact information.

Additionally, you can visit our ParentCare section at www.myspace.com/safetytips for additional contact information. Once arriving at this address simply click on the tab "for parents and educators" and choose the "Contact MySpace/ParentCare" link from the menu on the left.

Site Wide Safety Infrastructure

MySpace utilizes numerous techniques to increase the safety of all of its users, and especially that of its younger users. This safety infrastructure makes it all the more important that your teens use their correct age when joining MySpace.

At MySpace we have attempted to build into the website protections that are appropriate to the age of our younger users. The youngest users on MySpace have the strictest built in safety protections. All 13 to 17 year old profiles are automatically set to private upon signup. By default, only individuals who know either the last name or email address of a 13-15 year old member can add that member as a friend. In other words, the only people who can contact your teens online must already know who they are offline, and this is true regardless of the age of the individual contacting your 13-15 year old. Additionally, the only individuals who can even see 13/14/15 year old profiles are individuals on the "Friend" list; all 13/14/15 year old profiles are private. Additionally, all users under the age of 18 can block all users over the age of 18 from contacting them or viewing their profile, and vice versa. As users grow we provide them with some additional freedoms, for example 16/17 year olds have the option of turning some of these settings "off" .

Software

In addition to the safety infrastructure explained above, MySpace has developed a free tool to help you as parents determine whether your teen has a MySpace profile, and the age, username, and hometown your teen is using.

Our goal is to empower you as parents to engage in conversations with your teens about Internet safety and this software tool is another step in our continued commitment to developing safety and security programs for our online community.

Once this software is installed on your computer, it will identify the profiles of anyone who has signed onto MySpace using that computer, and will provide you with the corresponding username, age, and hometown. Any changes to the member's username, age, and hometown on MySpace, regardless of where the user logs in, will be recorded by the software so long as the home computer was on when the changes were made.

The software will prominently show that it is installed on the computer in use.

MySpace is always looking for new and better ways to ensure a safe user environment and this software is an important step to empower parents and initiate conversations about online safety.

Content

MySpace expects its users to strictly adhere to its Terms of Use, and can delete user accounts for uploading inappropriate videos or images, or taking part in hate speech or harassment. MySpace makes every effort to review all images, profiles and videos hosted on our site, as well as other areas when inappropriate content is suspected. We also rely on our users to report any content, contact, spam or area of the site that violate our Terms of Use or is inappropriate in any way. We take these reports very seriously and take appropriate action. Please encourage your teens to report any and all activity to MySpace that they feel should be reviewed.

Also, feel free to tell me what features you want to see on MySpace and if I think it's cool, we'll do it!

Who I'd like to meet:
 I'd like to meet people who educate, inspire or entertain me... I have a few close friends I've known all my life. I'd like to make more.

If your teen discovers that a false MySpace account has been created with their likeness and/or identity, we will remove the profile in question following our Imposer Profile removal process. Please have your teen contact us through the "Contact MySpace" link on the bottom of every page on MySpace, so that we may begin this process.

J. How to Remove Your Teen's MySpace Profile

We at MySpace are committed to helping parents with any inquiries they have regarding their teen's profile on MySpace.

If you would like to remove your teen's MySpace profile, or have concerns that your teen has not reflected his/her appropriate age, please visit us online so that we may assist you:

Please go the MySpace Safety Tips section at www.myspace.com/safetytips or click on Safety Tips at the bottom of every page of MySpace.com. Please select the "for parents & educators" tab. On the left side of the screen click on the "Contact MySpace / ParentCare" link and follow the on-screen directions.

If you decide to continue on via the Parent Hotline Information link, you will be directed to the following page:

Welcome to MySpace ParentCare!

MySpace is committed to helping parents with inquiries they have regarding their teen's profile on MySpace. Please choose from one of the following:

- If you wish to contact the ParentCare Team at MySpace to lock the age on your teen's profile, to delete your teen's profile, or have any other questions about your teen's profile, please select one of the two forms of contact below. You may contact us via email or telephone.
- If you would like more information about Tips for Parents and other parent-related information, please visit www.myspace.com/safety.

PLEASE NOTE: We will need the web address (or Friend ID#) of your teen's MySpace profile. This information is important because it is the only way we can assist you in your inquiry. Please include this information in your email to us or have it ready when you call.

To find the web address/URL or Friend ID:

1. Go to your teen's MySpace profile page
2. Look in the address bar on the top of your internet browser and you will see an address that begins with "http://" or "www". That is the web address or URL.
3. Look for the number at the end of the web address after "friendid=". That is the Friend ID.

For example

The Web address

is <http://profile.myspace.com/index.cfm?fuseaction=user.viewprofile&friendid=6221>

The URL is: <http://www.myspace.com/tom>

The Friend ID is: 6221

Please contact us by filling in the form below the "Contact ParentCare by Email" icon highlighted in orange. If you prefer to contact us by phone, please click on the "Contact ParentCare by Phone" icon and then fill in the form below that will appear

If you contact us via email you will need to fill out certain information including your name, your email address and a brief message regarding your issue.

You are emailing Customer Service
Please enter/verify the following information:

Your Name:

Your Email:

Message:

(Please be as detailed as possible up to 1500 characters)

We will email you back to get additional details about your issue and rectify the situation via email.

If you contact us via phone, you will also need to fill out information. We will send you an email that contains a contact phone number and a unique code for you to use when contacting us. We will then assist you with the problem via phone.

Complete the form below. You will receive an email with the ParentCare toll free number and an access code, which expires in 72 hours. The ParentCare Team is available from 6 am to 6 pm PST 7 days a week. If possible, please have your teen's web address, URL, or friend ID available when you call.

This form is to be used only for the purpose of assisting Parents with their teen's MySpace profile. Please note that MySpace reserves the right to provide all information submitted to local and / or Federal Law enforcement agencies.

Your IP address will be logged for security and identification purposes.

K. Cyberbullying & Threats

Cyberbullying, usually defined as sending or posting “cruel, vicious, and sometimes threatening messages” on the Internet, is an issue that MySpace takes seriously. MySpace’s Terms of Use specifically prohibit cyberbullying and other similar conduct, and MySpace attempts to respond quickly to any instances of such conduct that it discovers.

If your teen is a victim of cyberbullying on MySpace, please instruct him or her to do the following:

1. Click “Contact MySpace”, located on the bottom of any MySpace.com web page;
2. Select “Reporting Abuse” from the first dropdown menu;
3. Select “Cyberbullying” in the second dropdown menu;
4. Click on the “Submit” button;
5. Follow any and all subsequent directions.

He or she can also do this by clicking the “Report Abuse” link.

Upon receiving this report, MySpace will investigate and take appropriate action. MySpace considers cyberbullying a serious offense. Appropriate remedial action taken by MySpace in response to cyberbullying includes, but is not limited to, recommending that the user blocks the cyberbully from contacting them, and permanently removing the account of the cyberbully.

It is usually best for those teens who are the subjects of cyberbullying to contact MySpace themselves in order to expedite a resolution. Additionally, in case more information is needed from the teen, such as copies of the messages sent by the cyberbully, as well as links to the profile in question, it is easier to gather this information directly from the teen. Teens who are victims of cyberbullying should not delete any messages sent to them.

Parents can report cyberbullying to parentcare@myspace.com. Keep in mind that it will be helpful to our staff in rectifying the problem if you have the following information when contacting us:

1. The MySpace.com web address or URL of the victim of the cyberbullying;
2. The MySpace.com web address or URL of the alleged cyberbully;
3. Copies of messages and/or other forms of communication sent by the cyberbully to the victim;
4. Your relationship to both (or one) individual(s) involved;
5. Your contact information.

Most of the above is information you will need to get from your teen when s/he approaches you. Without it, it will be difficult for MySpace to address the complaint.

We also encourage you to work with the teens involved in order to resolve the issue. We at MySpace cannot meet with the teens in question to discuss the situation. As a parent who may know the teens in question and can actually meet with them if necessary, your assistance in matters of cyberbullying can often help better resolve the situation. Another resource at your disposal is the educational community. You may want to contact your teen's school administration for assistance.

If you hear about any kind of physical threats posted on MySpace.com, please gather as much information as possible on the threat and contact your local law enforcement agency immediately, so they can take appropriate action, including contacting MySpace.

The information you gather should include as many of the following items as possible:

1. The method of transmission of the threat (such as a bulletin, blog or private message);
2. A print-out copy of the web page that shows where the threat is posted; and
3. The web address of the threat (see Section I above on locating a web address).

You should also copy, paste and send links to where the threats are posted in an email to parentcare@myspace.com, please be sure to include your contact information.

L. Concerned Teachers

As parents, you may be contacted by the educational community regarding MySpace. Please inform teachers that they can contact MySpace with questions and concerns by clicking on "Contact MySpace", located at the bottom of every page on MySpace.com, and following the directions. They can also visit the Parents and Educators section at www.myspace.com/safetytips.

MySpace.com provides a Guide for the educational community tailored to their specific needs. We also have a team dedicated to resolving any issues or concerns of the educational community. Through a partnership with the National School Board Association and the National Association of Independent Schools, MySpace.com distributed this Guide to over 55,000 schools, reaching over 250,000 teachers and continues to distribute this Guide as requests are received.

Educators can request this Guide by sending an email from a school email address to schoolcare@myspace.com that includes their name and title and the address and telephone number of the school where they are employed.

You may also, of course, contact us at parentcare@myspace.com at your discretion with whatever issues are brought to you by concerned teachers, and we will attempt to address these issues to the best of our ability.

M. School Forums and Moderators

MySpace has created school forums for the majority of the High Schools and Colleges in the United States. MySpace users gain access to these forums when they list their schools on MySpace.com.

The image shows two screenshots from MySpace. The left screenshot is titled "MySpace Colleges & Schools" and features a chalkboard background with three white chalk-drawn figures. It lists three bullet points: "Join! It's easy to 'get back to school' with MySpace!", "Connect with classmates or make new friends.", and "Discuss! If it's happening at School, talk about it in the Schools Forums." The right screenshot is titled "School Finder" and is a form with the following fields: "School Name:" (Optional), "Country:" (United States), "State:" (Please select), and "City:" (Please select). A "Search" button is at the bottom. A note at the bottom left of the form says "* Required field".

The High School forums are deliberately divided into two different forums, one for Current Students and one for Alumni. Alumni cannot view the Current Student forum. In this manner, older alumni are separated from younger, current students.

Each school forum has a bulletin board. There is one bulletin board for Current Students and a separate bulletin board for Alumni. These bulletin boards allow each group to post electronic messages that only their respective group can see. Alumni cannot post on, or view, the Current Student bulletin board.

Students who post information on their schools' forums can apply to be moderators for those forums. MySpace looks at each student's application and MySpace profile, and selects one user to be the moderator for the Current Students, and one user to be the moderator for the Alumni, for each school.

Within a forum, a moderator can delete posts and ban users from posting any further messages. Moderators can also approve or delete images. All moderators have direct contact to a MySpace employee, and can contact this employee if they see profiles that need to be deleted, or have any issues that they feel need to be raised with MySpace.

Students in the forum who are not moderators can also contact MySpace with concerns. MySpace takes the moderator role very seriously, and as such we provide a way for user to inform us if there is an issue with a moderator or the forum in general. There is a "Report Your Moderator" link under the moderator image in the School forum. Users can report their moderators to MySpace by clicking on the link and following directions.

Additionally, like all profiles on MySpace, school forums are reviewed by the MySpace staff when complaints are received.

Just like the rest of the site, the schools section has built in safety features to protect your teen. For example, users over the age of 18 cannot use the schools area to search for current high school students or certain younger graduation years. In this way we maintain the schools section in an age appropriate fashion.

To search for your school, please note that MySpace's school search section can be found here:

N. School Resource Officer Guide

School Resource Officers, or Law Enforcement Officers that work with schools, can obtain a copy of the MySpace Law Enforcement Guide by sending an email requesting it to lawenforcement@myspace.com. Please have them send the email from a work email address so we can email the Guide to that address. The Law Enforcement Guide helps School Resource Officers obtain information from MySpace using valid legal processes, and to work with MySpace on security and safety issues.

O. What Information Is On MySpace?

Public Information

MySpace users may choose whether to make their profile information publicly viewable and available, or keep it private and limited to the friends of their choosing. (As a reminder, 13-17 year old members are automatically set to private.) For public profiles, the publicly available information includes journal entries (unless the profile owner has elected to make the specific entry “private”), images, user comments, friend lists and profile information such as display name, headline, music, movies, books and all other public sections on a MySpace profile. The “friend list” reveals very little about the individual friends other than a photo and screen name. If the friends’ profiles are private that is basically the only information accessible at all by looking at the “friend list”. If the profiles are public, then the above information is also available by clicking on the photo and navigating the individual profile page of each friend. If a MySpace user clicks on a private profile the only accessible information is a photo, screen name, headline, gender, age, location, last login and URL. All other information for a private profile is hidden.

If you need to make an electronic copy of the public components of the profile in question, you should save the web page(s) and files on your computer. While viewing the profile in question, click your browser's "File" menu tab (in the upper left-hand corner), then drop down to and click "Save As". Make sure you do the same for all journal entries and the image gallery.

P. Community and Collaboration

MySpace collaborates with law enforcement and the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC) on issues involving child pornography, missing or runaway children, or other relevant matters.

MySpace has created a 24-hour hotline for Law Enforcement, as well as a Guide to aid Law Enforcement in their investigations.

MySpace has partnered with NCMEC, National PTA, the Ad Council and others on Internet safety Public Service Announcements (PSAs) and ad campaigns. Additionally, MySpace partnered with NCMEC to distribute localized online AMBER alerts via MySpace so MySpace can help bring a missing child home.

Most recently, MySpace took an unprecedented step creating the first national, real-time searchable, sex offender database, in partnership with Sentinel Tech Holding Corp. The database called Sentinel SAFE contains background information on the nearly 600,000 registered sex offenders in the United States from various federal and state law enforcement agencies, including name, age, height, weight, eye color, hair color, scars and tattoos. MySpace is able to identify and block registered sex offenders from the site and is encouraging other Web sites and social networking services to do the same.

MySpace has been advocating, and testifying in favor of, federal and state legislation that would require convicted sex offenders to register all of their email addresses in a national sex offender database, so they can be blocked from accessing social networking sites like MySpace. Email registration legislation has been introduced at the federal and state levels and has already been signed into law in several states.

Q. Conclusion

Internet safety is an important topic in our advancing technological world, particularly when it involves children. We at MySpace are available to assist families and parents in furthering this important goal. We hope this Guide has provided insight into the functioning of MySpace, and illuminated the many ways in which you and your family can contact us with any questions or concerns that arise.
